Sell Your eBooks On 8 Online Platforms

Now you are looking for places to sell your eBooks online, right?

Well, you're in luck! Check out these 8 amazing eBook selling platforms just waiting for you!

Are you ready to sell your eBook online?

When it comes to promoting and selling eBooks online, we've never had it better or easier. I guess that's why so many bloggers and entrepreneurs are doing great with their eBook writing and publishing right now.

Just cast your memory back to 5 or even 10 years ago. There weren't really many great places to sell your eBooks on the web, even though eBooks were just starting to get popular.

Giving it away on your blog or your website was just about the simplest thing you could do, and it still is today.

However, you want to sell your eBook, right?

Of course, you do.

Thankfully, today there are dozens of great platforms on the internet where you can sell your digital books and make money.

So, without further ado, in this guide, I want to share with you 8 of those great platforms.

Pick a couple of them below and start selling your eBooks now.

8 amazing websites to sell your eBook on

1. Payhip.com

Payhip is the site that I'm currently using myself to host and sell my eBook on.

The site allows me to not only host my eBooks but to also create promotional campaigns using their promo tools.

I can also create affiliates and get other bloggers and marketers to promote and sell my eBooks for me, whilst they earn a commission for themselves.

Payment is conveniently handled through PayPal, and the company takes only 5% commission on each eBook sale I make.

There are no setup fees, no monthly fees, or even hosting fees to concern myself with.

Another big plus point with Payhip is that they also report and pay EU VAT on my behalf.

I would highly recommend checking them out to sell your eBook on.

2. Selz.com

I've never personally used Selz to sell eBooks on, however, I have purchased eBooks through them many times in the past.

A couple of friends of mine do quite well with Selz too.

Selz is much more than just a place to host and sell your eBooks on. The site provides authors with a complete eCommerce solution, plus marketing tools and resources.

Here's what you get –

Only pay when you sell

No fixed monthly fees, no bandwidth fees, no hosting fees.

Pay just 2.0% per transaction and get all these features:

- ✓ Unlimited items, storage & bandwidth
- ✓ Sell digital, physical & service products
- ✓ Secure digital delivery & file updates
- ✓ 2.9% + 30¢ payment processing*
- ✓ Advanced sales and customer analytics
- ✓ Facebook store and social network sharing
- ✓ Discount codes
- ✓ Embed within your website or blog
- ✓ Real time fraud protection
- ✓ Built for mobiles and tablets
- ✓ No merchant account required
- ✓ No contracts or commitments

Monthly fees start from just $17 per month for a Lite plan, and there's also a Standard & Pro plan to choose from.

In addition, the company only takes a 2% transaction fee, as well as a small processing fee.

3. Fiverr.com

Fiverr is probably one of the most popular places on the web to sell any type of digital product or service.

The site is a great platform to launch your eBook on, in fact, I've had some good sales with selling my eBooks on Fiverr in the past.

Revenues UPCOMING EARNINGS: $4

DATE	FOR	AMOUNT
Aug 07, 15	Funds Cleared (view order)	$4
Jul 23, 15	Funds Cleared (view order)	$4
Jun 14, 15	Funds Cleared (view order)	$4
May 21, 15	Funds Cleared (view order)	$4
May 12, 15	Funds Cleared (view order)	$4
Apr 26, 15	Funds Cleared (view order)	$4

The built-in tools and features in Fiverr are useful too. You get a complete dashboard for managing your customer communication, orders, and sales.

The only annoying problem I found with Fiverr is that you have to manually email deliver the eBooks yourself each time you make a sale.

You also have to maintain your profile so that your gigs don't become deactivated after some time, so that means logging in every few weeks or so.

The fact that your digital products aren't delivered automatically when someone makes a purchase can be a huge pain in the backside as an eBook seller.

The other pitfall I found with selling eBooks on Fiverr is that they take $1 per transaction, so if your eBook is priced at $5, that's a whopping 20% commission.

If you don't think that's too bad, compare that with services like Selz and Payhip.

The benefit of selling your eBooks on Fiverr, however, is that the platform is a pretty large place. You're leveraging the popularity of the website to promote and sell your eBooks.

Even though there might be a lot of competition out there, the site gets a ton of traffic, and you have every opportunity to make a sale of your eBook.

4. Amazon.com

Amazon is probably the most popular place on the web for selling eBooks right now.

Now, I have never used the Amazon Marketplace to sell anything myself. I have purchased a lot of eBooks and books from Amazon, though.

One of my goals in 2018, is in fact, to write and sell an eBook on Amazon.

I'll let you know if that actually happens!

As an author, you can earn between 35% and 70% royalty for your eBooks sold on the Amazon platform, depending on your location and pricing structure I believe.

Because Amazon is such a massive and extremely popular platform, it's probably the most likely place for blog writers, authors, and entrepreneurs to want to sell their eBooks on.

The site is also a great place to get real verified sales feedback for your eBooks too.

5. Feiyr.com

Now again, I have had no experience with selling my eBooks on Feiyr.com. I'm adding the platform to this list as another option for you.

The company states that they've been around since 2006, and from what I've read through my own research and on online forums, they're a great place to self-publish and distribute your eBooks on.

Feiy's pricing to sell your own music and ebooks is easy to understand and without any hidden costs. Here you can see a summary of the most important costs. After registration you can look at the prices of all our services including all necessary information. There's a one-time fee of 9.90€ for the activation of your account. This fee is coming to due only if you want to publish your song or eBook. Up to that point you can test your Feiy account for free. If you decide not to use Feiy, you do not have to pay anything.

Registration is free, however, there is a small account activation fee, around €9 I think.

There is no monthly or yearly cost with Feiy.com and you earn 80% commission on sales of your eBooks, which probably means 20% goes to the site.

6. Blurb.com

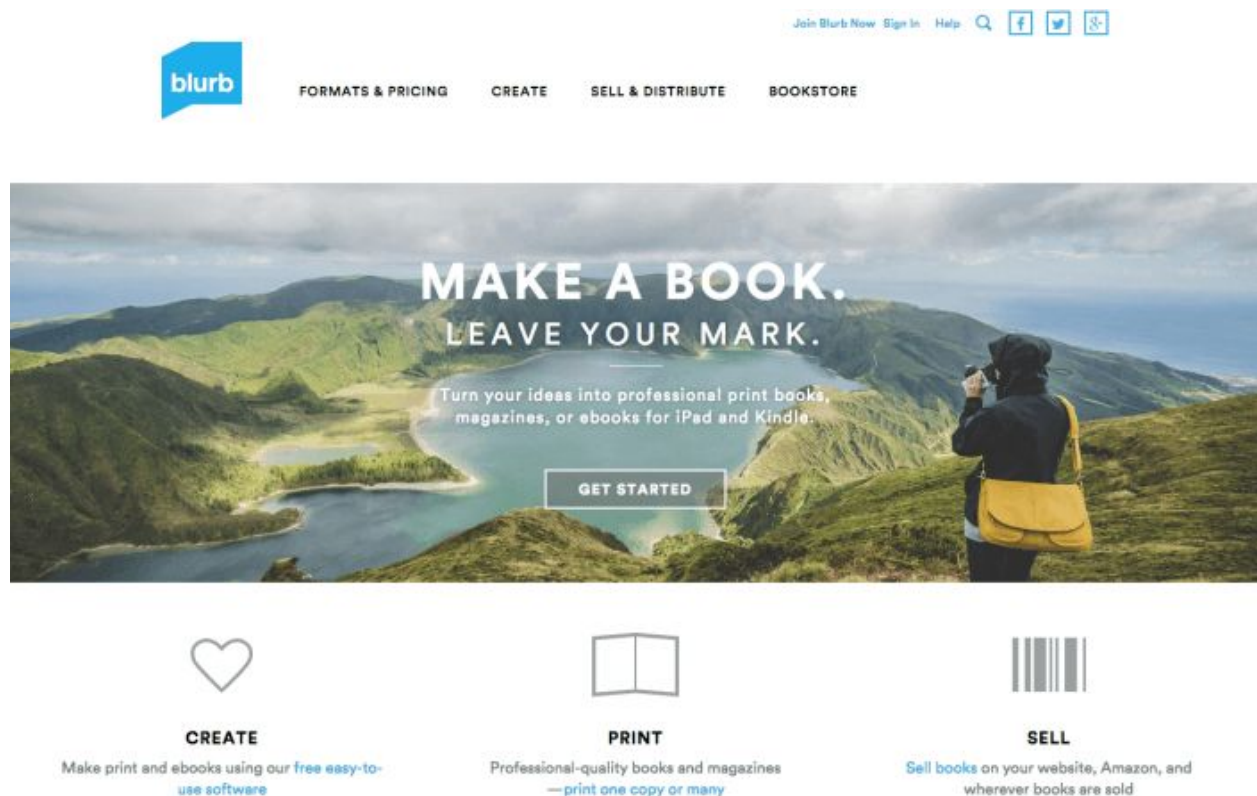

Blurb is a cool site where you can not only sell and distribute your eBooks on but also actually create your eBooks to start with.

It's a complete eBook creation, promotion, and selling platform.

Your options are that you can sell on their own platform, the Amazon or Barnes & Noble platform, and the Apple iBooks Store.

The site has some really cool software features you can use to create and style your eBooks before promoting it and selling it to your target audience.

You can also create quality printed books and magazines using Blurb, should you wish to. You can learn more about the site here.

7. Google Play

If you want to make your eBooks available on the Android platform, there's no better place to start than Google Play.

8. E-junkie

Finally, we get to good old E-Junkie. This is where it all began for me as an eBook author many years ago now.

E-Junkie is the place to sell digital downloads.

The platform keeps things very simple. They don't charge you for sales of your PDF eBooks, you only need to pay a monthly fee for hosting your eBooks.

Fees depend on how many eBooks you want to host with E-Junkie.

The platform offers a host of marketing tools, options, and features, including PDF stamping of your eBooks, affiliate tools, sales reports, and more.

That's it!

I do hope these 8 platforms will help you to sell your ebook and get royalty profits.

It might be worth trying each one out to see which gives you the best ROI for your eBooks.

To your success journey
